American Legacy Fine Arts (ALFA) takes pride in connecting collectors with today's leading artists and advising on the acquisition of premier-quality works of art that have investment potential.

The gallery was founded by Elaine Adams to provide contemporary-traditional artists with the freedom to create works that truly inspire them. To help collectors embrace this concept, ALFA offers educational events in conjunction with all its exhibitions, as education plays an important role in appreciating and understanding fine works of art.

The artists represented by ALFA have been carefully selected, with a focus on leaders among artists—artists whom other artists strive to emulate.

"We look for artists with unique personalities, because it's that individual spirit that comes through in their works. And because their works are confidently executed, and cannot be replicated, the paintings and sculpture presented at ALFA naturally become more precious and valuable with time," adds Adams.

She also shares, "An exquisite painting or sculpture will enhance your surroundings, while also reflecting your unique individuality. Selected wisely, top-quality art can be enjoyed for generations to come."

Among the leading contemporary-traditional fine art painters and sculptors that ALFA represents are Peter Adams, Béla Bácsi, Peter Brooke, George Gallo, David C. Gallup, Jean LeGassick, Jeremy Lipking, Eric Merrell, Stephen Mirich, Alexander V. Orlov, Tony Peters, Daniel W. Pinkham, Scott W. Prior, Mian Situ, Christopher Slatoff, Tim Solliday, Alexey Steele, William Stout, and Jove Wang. In addition, the gallery also represents a selection of historic California paintings.
